Less than five minutes west of the intersection of US-23 and Plymouth Road, Ironwood Place is located near the heart of Ann Arbor's famous research and technology district. Domino's Farms, the North Campus Medical Center, and the University's North Campus are also a very short, casual drive away. Hidden in the center of this thriving center of activity, on top of a hill, and next to the Leslie Golf Course, is the 96 unit apartment complex we call Ironwood Place.

Come to Ironwood Place and see for yourself. Privacy and elegance also come with a clubhouse, pool, and tennis court without noise, neon, or bother. Quality in every detail was the central theme in creating the excellence and beauty which, until now, was not possible in city apartment living.

The art of collaboration

For the women in charge, the trick is making three fairs function like one

To most out-of-town visitors, "the Ann Arbor Art Fair" is one amorphous mega-event sprawling from South University to Main Street. Actually, it consists of three independent events—the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, the State Street Area Art Fair, and the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair. Though each has its own history, artist roster, and economic niche, the differences between the fairs have blurred in recent years, thanks to better cooperation among the three sponsoring organizations.

"We're not distinctly different. It's more a matter of emphasis," says Susan Froelich, the blond, genial, late-thirtyish coordinator of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair. "There's some rivalry, but I think it's healthy."

The Street Art Fair, held along South University, East University, and Church Street, began in 1960. It has historically been regarded as the fair with the highest standards and the most rigorous jurying process.

"We pride ourselves on finding artists that really are on the cutting edge, doing something different," says Froelich. "Their work doesn't always sell. Each year, we have an artist or two who doesn't really sell anything, but they make gallery contacts."

The State Street Area Art Fair began twenty-four years ago. Since the late 1970's, its artists, too, have been subject to strict quality reviews. "It's a misconception that the original art fair is the only juried one," says Kathy Krick, the fair's ash-blond, thirty-three-year-old director. State Street is considered a tad less avant-garde than the original South U fair, but also a bit more reasonably priced.

Krick is in her third year of juggling her part-time job at the fair with her full-time work as a graphic designer for the U-M's Marketing Communications department and her four children, the youngest born this past May. While still a student in 1982, Krick also designed the fair's logo: a red director's chair with attached balloon.

The Summer Art Fair began twenty-one years ago as a kind of hippie offshoot of the other fairs, organized by a group of U-M-based artists and craftspeople. That group has since evolved into the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, an artist support organization with a membership of about 2,000 artists nationwide.

With two locations, on State Street in front of Angell Hall and on Main and Liberty streets downtown, the Summer Art Fair is by far the largest of the three fairs. It's considered the most affordable and crafts-oriented of the three.

"We don't have a lot of turnover in the displaying artists because ours is a membership organization," explains Shary Brown, a tanned, athletic looking woman in her early forties who serves as the guild's art fair director. "You must be a member to exhibit. You also need to be juried, but it's not a competitive process in [the sense] that a new person can bump you."

Native Ann Arborites all, Froelich, Krick, and Brown enjoy collaborating on their three-part event. "I'd say in the last three to five years we've worked really closely together," says Brown. "Part of it is just reality—you need to work together for production mechanics."

While Froelich and Krick both have arts backgrounds (for years, Froelich managed the Ann Arbor Art Association's exhibit gallery), Brown is an ex-lawyer. She says she left the profession when she found herself "internalizing the problems of the people I was trying to help." As a lawyer, "you're dealing with people with very important problems—like liberty, or the quality of life," she says. "I think this is what I like here. Yes, it's important to the artists that we do a good job, but it's a creative, life-giving pursuit!"

All three women admit they've heard their share of complaints from fellow Ann Arborites who loathe the art fair. "I have friends that leave town," says Krick.

"Sure, some people leave town," responds Froelich. "My guess is it's about evenly divided between Ann Arbor people who hate the art fair and those who invite out-of-town guests and use it as a chance to show off their town."

The art sales slump

It's a trend the fairs hope to avoid

The last time potter Ellen Shankin sold her wares at an art fair was ten years ago in State College, Pennsylvania. "I was pregnant, the van broke down, it cost four hundred dollars for the booth, four hundred for the room, plus all the food, and I only sold four hundred dollars worth of stuff," she recalls. "I said, 'Never again.' "

Since then, Shankin has sold her work exclusively through the wholesale American Craft Enterprises show held in Baltimore each February. The show attracts some 5,000 art gallery owners annually and ordinarily generates enough orders for Shankin to keep her busy year-round.

But this year, Shankin is exhibiting her work, for the first time ever, at the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, traveling from her home in rural Floyd, Virginia, to do so.

Why the change of heart? "I was really leery of the economy this February," says Shankin. "The average [wholesale] order from a gallery used to be six hundred dollars. This winter, it was two hundred fifty to three hundred."

Other artists report similar declines in orders. "The wholesale numbers are down, reflecting the struggle of galleries," says Skip Steinworth, a former Street Art Fair exhibitor who has since switched totally to gallery distribution. "Some artists have told me their sales are down by as much as sixty percent."

So far, Ann Arbor's retail fairs have dodged the bullet. "I was real concerned last year," says Street Art Fair coordinator Susan Froelich. But far from slipping, Froelich says, her fair's sales actually "were up by a comfortable margin" last year. "We're going to watch this year very closely. I don't expect to see any big increase in sales, but I expect we'll hold our own."

That's what Ellen Shankin is counting on. —J.J. ►

Who are those big spenders?

Oprah Winfrey, for one

At the State Street Area Art Fair last summer, watercolor painter David Gill could have sold two $3,800 paintings in five minutes. Unfortunately for him, both buyers wanted the same painting. And unfortunately for Oprah Winfrey, she was the second—and unsuccessful—bidder.

As Gill recalls it, he was sitting in his booth on State Street on the fair's third day when Winfrey walked in, wearing a denim dress, a straw hat, and sunglasses. The artist was stunned. "I didn't recognize her at first," he admits in a homey Virginia drawl. "She'd started getting big again, you know. And her hair wasn't all poofy like it is on TV." But there's no question in his mind that it was the Chicago talk show host—or that he missed a great sale. He says she walked right up to one of the largest paintings in his booth, a still life titled "Grand Light," and asked to buy it.

It happened that another customer had bought that painting not five minutes earlier. Gill tried to talk Winfrey into something else, a painting in the $1,700 to $1,800 range. He even offered to paint her another version of "Grand Light." "She was real nice and receptive," he remembers, "and then she kind of just meandered out." An hour later, Gill heard that she'd bought a painting from another artist—for $5,000!

Few are as famous as Winfrey, but big-time buyers are a regular part of the scene at art fairs across the country. "You can kinda see 'em coming," says Gill. "You talk to them a few minutes and you know you're with the right person, just by the questions they ask, the way they talk."

Until he switched entirely to gallery sales this year, artist Skip Steinworth sold his tightly rendered pencil drawings at the Street Art Fair on South U. Prices ranged as high as $5,000 for a 40 inch by 60 inch image, and he says most of his big spenders were serious collectors in their late forties to sixties. "But it's hard to predict," he adds. A few years ago, at a fair in Chicago, Steinworth sold three works totaling $10,000 to a thirty-five-year-old nuclear power consultant from Britain who had just started collecting.

Florida jeweler Peggy Simmons, a seven-year veteran of the Street Art Fair, says she can't predict who will buy her big-ticket items. "The person who bought the least expensive pair of earrings last year may come in and buy a five thousand dollar neckpiece this year," she says. She's doing well, she adds, to make one such big sale per fair. Simmons bases her prices on the cost of materials ("in my case they're very expensive"), insurance ("a major factor"), and travel ("a large portion of my business costs"). "I pay myself a living wage," she says (just what that is she won't specify, except that it's "not like a doctor"). "It's done as accurately as I can figure it."

For Maine-born sculptor Phillip Zeller, the price of a work of art depends on "the time it took me to make it and the aesthetics of the piece." Zeller, sixty-five, has been exhibiting and selling at art fairs for twenty years. For the last decade he's made his living entirely from sales and orders taken in the four-day State Street Area Art Fair.

Zeller carves birds from basswood and paints them with acrylics. They usually sell out by noon on the first day of the fair. The sculptor spends the rest of his time taking orders from customers, most of whom, he says, buy from him year after year. Some pay as much as $15,000 for a single piece. Despite the intense demand, "I kind of hate to raise my prices," says Zeller. "I feel a loyalty to my customers."

Zeller, like Steinworth and Simmons, protects the privacy of his big clients. But suburban Detroit realty agent and self-described "art fair junkie" Dennis Dickstein doesn't mind if people know how he spends his money. Collecting art has consumed him for the past twenty-five years. "I love art," says Dickstein. "I love the ambience of the art fair, actually talking to the artists. It makes for a more personal, more emotional contact with the art."

Dickstein visits fifteen to twenty art fairs a year, normally spending two days per show. "I go through the fair once and decide what I might buy. Then I go through it a second time in the opposite direction," he explains; that way, he sees each booth and its art from two different angles.

Painter John Gill was sitting in his booth on the fair's third day when Oprah Winfrey walked in wearing a denim dress, a straw hat, and sunglasses.

Dickstein is an eclectic collector. His purchases range from a $24 papier-mache clown to sculptures, acrylic paintings, and prints costing "well into the thousands for just one item." He's not rich—but he's willing to go into debt for a purchase he really wants. (Afterward, he says, "one works one's little butt off" to pay for it.) Dickstein says he relishes "the psychological element of sacrifice or compromise" his big purchases entail.

It isn't just art that Dickstein falls in love with at the fairs. Artist Mary Du Prie caught his eye at a fair last spring, and the two have been dating for almost a year. Now Dickstein travels with Du Prie to fairs around the country and helps her sell the furniture-size jewelry cases that won her an award at last year's State Street Area Art Fair.

"I couldn't ask for a better salesman," says Du Prie, who adds that of late Dickstein has even begun to negotiate for a commission. "He says that if he sells anything over a certain amount, he gets to spend it on me," sighs Du Prie. "All this free labor—I knew it couldn't last forever."

The helicopter pilot artists

When Vietnam vets Jim Ochs and Greg Stewart get together, things can be pretty interesting

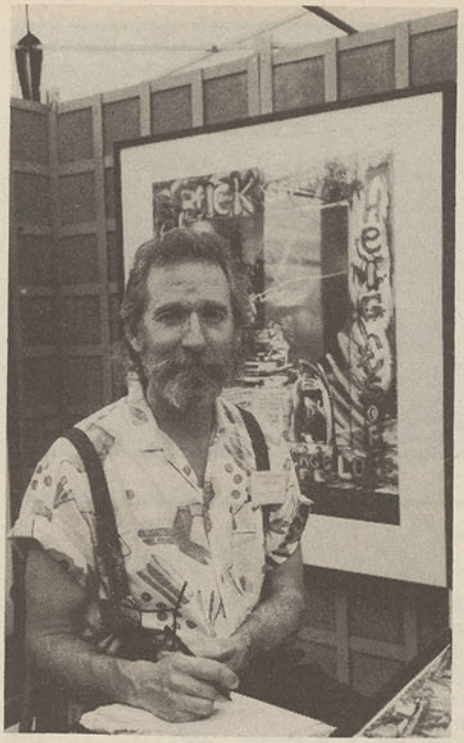
For fair-goers, street fairs provide a chance to meet an artist face-to-face. For artists—many of whom spend the rest of the year cooped up in their studios—fairs are a chance to meet, not only their customers, but one another. Fair artists form a mobile community that convenes dozens of times a year at shows all around the country. Jim Ochs, an Iowa printmaker who exhibits at the Street Art Fair, calls it his "traveling family."

At the Street Art Fair last summer, Ochs struck up a friendship with Greg Stewart, the exhibitor in the next booth. Ochs and Stewart, a Tennessean who works in two-dimensional mixed media, were amazed to discover that they both had served as helicopter pilots in Vietnam.

The two veterans spent four days talking nonstop. "It was a riot," says Ochs, forty-eight. "There was a lot of out-and-out laughter, and some sadness, talking about our experiences."

Vietnam crops up sometimes in Stewart's art—an unusual mixture of painting, drawing, and hand-colored photographs—which tells an ongoing story about twenty characters who frequent his fictional Rainbow Sausage Cafe. "Half of me is a writer, and this is a way I can get both kinds of art out at the same time," explains Stewart, who began writing after he received his M.F.A. in printmaking from the University of Tennessee in 1979.

Stewart says the idea for the Rainbow Sausage Cafe came to him about six years ago in the form of Bertrand Burferd III, a fictional character who immigrated to America in the 1920's and discovered that Americans like their hot dogs red. Hot dogs are red thanks only to nitrates. Otherwise, they are gray. Why not make them other colors, too, Bertrand asks himself, and he begins to make and sell rainbow-colored sausages at his Rainbow Sausage Cafe.



Greg Stewart with one of his mixed media pieces on the Rainbow Sausage Cafe. Stewart's series chronicles the adventures of twenty or so regulars at the fictional bar—including a veteran helicopter pilot known as "Two in a Tall Glass."

From there the story "goes on forever," Stewart says—to the second-generation son, Burton Burferd, who inherits the cafe, and to all the characters who "come into the Rainbow Sausage Cafe and don't need to explain themselves" because Burt has turned the cafe into a bar. One of them is "Two in a Tall Glass," a veteran helicopter pilot who doesn't talk much. "He realized over in Vietnam that words didn't make sense anymore," Stewart says, "that in some situations words are totally ineffective—especially in trying to figure out what's moral and what isn't."

Stewart seems obsessed with issues of morality. Drafted into the army in 1967 after flunking out of college ("a bad time to flunk out," he says), he still wrestles with the questions of his and his country's involvement in Vietnam. "Doing art and writing about it [Vietnam] helps me figure it out," he says, "but it doesn't go away."

"Greg is at the other end of the stream from me in his reaction to the war experience," says Ochs, who was drafted in late 1969 and served in Vietnam through 1970. "I just walked away from it and said, 'That's it.' Greg is very intense, . . . still very enmeshed in it. It was an experience so horrendous and fulfilling at the same time that I can see how it can grab someone's life and dominate."

Ochs completed the graduate program in printmaking at the University of Iowa after he returned. "I was very fortunate in being able to express myself through my work, and to my friends," says Ochs. "I had nothing to keep in or suppress, so everything was out at a very early time in my career. It might have been harder for career military guys who learned how to suppress their emotions as part of their military discipline."

"I was very fortunate in being able to express myself through my work, and to my friends," says Jim Ochs of his Vietnam experience. "I had nothing to keep in or suppress, so everything was out at a very early time in my career."

Stewart and Ochs are now on the lookout for other Vietnam veterans who work the art fair circuit. At this year's Street Art Fair, they plan to sit right next to each other, along with Stewart's wife, Kenlyn, who works with inlaid batik.

"Every show he's at, I'll request to be near him," says Ochs of Stewart. "We have a lot in common, and we want to elaborate on that. So if you're there at Ann Arbor and you hear those good old stories and riotous laughter come out, you'll know who it is."

The fair-goer who became an artist's muse

The curious origin of "Paddy O'Possum"

If you are like many art fair-goers, you wonder where artists get their inspiration. Sometimes it might turn out to be you. At every art fair, says printmaker David Bigelow, he encounters at least one person who has some great idea for a piece of art he should make.

"I dutifully write these things down," says Bigelow, forty-two, who lives in Flint and has exhibited in the Street Art Fair since 1971. He admits that he writes down a lot of duds just to be polite, but "over time, I look at this list of stuff and if something has merit to it, its stock goes up."

About five years ago, Bigelow recalls, a woman at the Ann Arbor fair told him she fed opossums in her backyard and made up stories about them. Bigelow made this note of one possum's name—"Patti O'Possum ('She's Irish')."

"This is one idea I didn't consciously plan to use," Bigelow says dryly. But his creative unconscious had other notions. Earlier this year, he drew "Katie and Paddy O'Possum ('They're Irish.')" He exhibited an etching of the O'Possums for the first time at an April show in Charlotte, North Carolina.

"Hey! I gave you this idea!" a woman fair-goer announced. Astonished, Bigelow looked up to see his possum-feeding muse from Michigan.

The woman, who lives in Birmingham, Michigan, was in Charlotte for the weekend to attend a doll convention and had come to the art fair by pure coincidence. Somehow, among 300 exhibitors, she had wandered into Bigelow's booth, and the O'Possum etching was one of the first things she saw.

Bigelow promptly presented her with the etching.

The fair on TV

Watching the crowd on Community Access

A friend who's avoided the art fair like the plague for years says he's having second thoughts. Shortly after last year's fair, he was at his TV, flipping channels, when he was stopped by the image of a woman wearing glasses and a propeller cap. People were passing by behind her, looking at her curiously. An off-camera voice said, "You're on." The woman giggled and then, clearly reading, said: "Come and visit the Community Access TV booth at the art fair and you can be a TV star like me." She laughed and said, "I'm Linda from Dexter, Michigan."

Linda was replaced by three teenagers who laughed self-consciously and said they were having a great time. They were replaced by Maria Comninou, who spoke about the Humane Society and the importance of neutering cats.

Our friend had bumped into a taped rerun of one of the simplest and most successful of all art fair promotions: Community Access TV's television camera on East Liberty. Live throughout the fair, and intermittently on tape thereafter, anyone passing by can address the nation—or at least the part of it served locally by Columbia Cable.

By now our friend was hooked. It was good-bye to old movies and Prime Time Wrestling. He watched as Jeff from the Ecology Center said hello. A young man named Stu from New York City looked around and said, "Gosh." Dr. Gabel, a chiropractor, made a pitch for "postural health." A lady from Farmington laughed and couldn't talk. Steve from Wellness Network spoke about his organization, and Maureen talked about hers—Ozone House.

A black man in a colorful skullcap talked about how nice it was that culture was coming to Ann Arbor, which could certainly use it. He was followed by Tracy from Dearborn, who said, "Hi, Mom." —Al Slote ►

Aphrodisiac vs. "antler art"

Asian competition is driving Pinckney's "Antler People" out west to stay

When Patti Walker first saw Mark Allen selling antlers at an arts and crafts show in Key West in 1972, it was not love at first sight. "Stay away from him—he's weird," she remembers telling Brian, her kindergarten-aged son. Mark, a native of Ann Arbor, and his buddy Ron "Bucky" Kuhns had come across a large number of deer and elk antlers on a trip to the western United States and had just started the business they called "the Antler People" using bits of the antlers to ornament knives, bottle openers, and the like.

Like many people, Patti assumed that the Antler People slaughtered deer and elk to get their antlers. But over the next months, Mark convinced her that he was "not using helicopters and machine guns to slaughter elks and deer." Thus began a romantic and business partnership that has flourished for eighteen years.

Whenever they exhibit their antler fireplace sets, mirrors, and clocks at art fairs, the Allens still have to spend a lot of time educating their public. Male deer and elk, Patti explains, shed their antlers naturally every spring. New ones grow to take their place.

The couple drives to the Dakotas, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, and Idaho each spring, traveling back roads and sleeping in their van while they search for antlers and visit their suppliers (and friends). Most of their suppliers are "cowboys and Indians"—ranchers and Native Americans who subsist by growing their own food and selling and trading found natural objects like fossils, minerals, and antlers.

The Allens spin tales about the characters they have met on those back roads in the West. When they describe eating elk jerky and drinking whiskey with their friends on American Indian reservations, it's clear that the line between their work and their play is a fuzzy one.

A shift in antler economics contributed to their decision to move permanently to the West next spring. Many Asian peoples believe that elk antlers have aphrodisiac and medicinal qualities and are willing to pay a lot to get them.

About 9,000 elk winter each year at the National Elk Refuge outside Jackson Hole, Wyoming, where they shed 7,000 pounds of antlers. These are sold at an annual auction. Refuge manager Mike Hedrick says that antlers sold for about $11 per pound at this year's auction. That's up from just 50 cents a pound in 1968—an increase due largely to the demand created by the Asian market.

By moving closer to the source, the couple hopes to get a jump on their new competition. Antler art has been entering the mainstream since trend-setting European and American interior designers popularized the southwestern American style. The Allens hope to open a chain of stores where they can tap into this growing market for their antler products as well as for fossils, arrowheads, and other souvenirs of the old West.

There are personal reasons for the planned move as well. "We want a change of life-style," says Mark, looking over the blue water of Base Line Lake in the weekday stillness. That peace will disappear in a few days when the weekend boaters return. "These rich people building houses around here, their kids have it made. We've got a young one who needs to get toughened up a little," Mark says.

The Allens describe themselves as "middle class"—though it's the tenuous and adventurous sort typical of the art fair circuit. They usually have a lean winter. "My grandmother always thought I should be a waitress," Patti laughs. "She never could get used to our rags and riches kind of life." —M.D. ►

Who's going to take out the garbage?

The U-M wants the fairs to clean up the campus, too

GREGORY FOX

An overflowing trash bin at Regents Plaza

Who is going to take out the garbage? It's a touchy issue in many a marriage, and lately Ann Arbor's long-running town-gown union seems to be suffering its share of domestic strife.

The garbage issue came to the surface in October 1989, when Street Art Fair director Susan Froelich received a bill from the U-M for maintenance services connected with that summer's fair—for a whopping $17,148.74. Of this amount, $15,728.18 was labeled simply "grounds."

"It made me gasp!" says Froelich. "We have had an understanding with the university that we would pay for services that we requested for the fair. Up to that time, our bill usually ran between one and two thousand dollars. Most of it was for electrical work or sprinkler hookups for the stage at the Graceful Arch, which had a covering that was not fire-retardant." Another small amount was designated for public access to some bathrooms in the East Engineering building.

But in 1989, because of university construction, the Street Art Fair moved its stage and put the Graceful Arch tent in storage, and thus no longer needed U-M plumbers to hook up the sprinkling system. At the same time, the university had rescinded the East Engineering toilet privileges, saying the facilities were needed for summer classes.

Froelich asked the university for a breakdown of the unexpected 1989 costs. It turns out that "grounds" meant cleanup. After nearly thirty years, the university—in the person of Russ Reister, its veteran director of plant operations—had decided to charge the fair for cleaning up litter left on the Diag during the four-day event.

The idea that the fairs owed the university money just because fair-goers passed through its grounds baffled Froelich. "This all happened the year of the NCAA championship," she points out. When South U stores were damaged by rioting celebrants, "insurance [alone] covered the merchants' claims—the university never paid. We're not going to pay the university to pick up their property."

Froelich soon discovered a deep rupture in communications. "Russ did not know that there are three fairs!" she says. Since the Street Art Fair was the only one that had an account with Plant Operations, it was charged for cleaning up everyone's garbage during the four-day fair.

Reister, who retired in May, doesn't say why he billed only the Street Art Fair. (The other two fairs actually share larger common boundaries with the university.) But he strongly defends the necessity of his action. "My personal view is [the fairs] ought to pay for their cleanup," he says. "I don't know why they weren't charged before then. The cleanup had been geting worse and worse each year—the place was getting trashed." As the university's budget tightens up, he says, it "can't afford to subsidize things like this."

According to Reister, the university spends a lot of money on its post-fair cleanup. Even the $15,000 bill, he says, doesn't reflect the full expense—it's just the cost of collecting the garbage. With landfill tipping fees included, the total price tag is closer to $25,000.

Froelich counters that the three fairs clean up every city street they use during the fair for only $7,500. The fairs, though, cut costs by using students and nonprofit groups to do the work. University trash collectors earn at least $10 an hour, $14 if they use heavy equipment. Adding benefits and overhead, Reister acknowledges billing their time at $20 to $25 an hour.

Last year, the Street Art Fair board refused to go ahead with the Graceful Arch stage until the university agreed that it would not hold the fair liable for the cleanup. Finally, last June, the 1989 cleanup fees were officially "forgiven" by the executive officers of the university. They recommended further meetings to iron out future arrangements between the fair organizers and the university.

That attempt turned into a bureaucratic comedy of errors. First, the problem was dumped in the lap of vice president Henry Johnson. After just one meeting between Johnson and the fair organizers, however, responsibility was shifted to an "external relations team." Two scheduled meetings with that group were canceled—at which point the ball bounced to community relations liaison Pete Pellerito.

Pellerito is well acquainted with the delicate power balance in town-gown relationships. He served as chairman of the Ann Arbor Chamber of Commerce in 1988 and is now an assistant to U-M vice president Dick Kennedy. He admits to being at a disadvantage in the current situation, however, since he has been working in state relations for the last two years. "In the past, the university has been pretty decentralized about the fair, because there hasn't been much controversy," he says.

In late June, the university finally agreed not to bill the fairs for cleanup costs this year. In September, Pellerito would like to have a meeting with representatives of the three fairs to set policy for future interactions. He sees parking problems and food vendors as other areas that could ruffle the domestic tranquility that has prevailed between the town and gown communities during the annual July event.

"I don't think that there is any one person at the university who can respond to all of the issues here. I have always characterized the university's relationship to the art fair as a good one, but I haven't talked to anyone recently," he says cautiously. —Linda Benson ■

THE · ORIGINAL · JURIED · FAIR

A spectacular gallery on South U

Place: The Street Art Fair takes place on South University from Washtenaw to East University, on East U south to Willard, and on Church south of South University.

Size: The fair has been gradually reducing the number of shared booths over the past six years. This year it eliminated them completely. That reduced the number of exhibitors to 187. An additional thirteen artists won places in the Ann Arbor Potters Guild exhibit in a separate jurying process.

Comments: The Street Art Fair is the original Ann Arbor art fair, and its establishment in 1960 helped spur a national surge of interest in handmade arts and crafts. Its reputation for choosing artists on the cutting edge makes it the most prestigious—and usually the most expensive—of the three fairs, with many high-quality pieces selling in the three- and four-figure range.

Artist selection: Each year about half of the exhibitors are invited back after on-the-street jurying during the fair. In addition, each medium is completely rejuried every four years. This year, the glass, fiber, and wood categories ha been rejuried. The fair received mo than 1,400 applications. In all, sixty-tw of 187 exhibitors are new to the fair th year.

Participating artists pay a 4 percer commission on their sales plus a $150 fe for a standard 10′ × 10′ booth space electricity, publicity, and entertainmen programming.

Sponsor: The fair has a corporate sponsor for the first time, thanks to a $30,000 grant from the MCI Corporation; $5,000 will be used to keep entertainment going at the Graceful Arch Stage, while the rest supports the operations of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, Inc. The nonprofit organization is governed by a sixteen-member board of directors that includes South University merchants and Ann Arbor artists and townspeople. The current board president, Andriette "Andy" Dryden, is coowner of Logos bookstore, and treasurer Paul Rosser is the manager of Ulrich's bookstore. Beth Pennington, a spinner and community supporter, is vice president, and Gail Dapogny, a potter, is secretary. Susan Froelich is fair coordinator.

For information about artists or about the 1992 fair, July 22–25, write to the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, Box 1352, Ann Arbor 48106, or call (313) 994–5260.

Prizes and purchase awards: On Wednesday, July 24, two outside jurors will give out ten $300 cash awards to recognize exhibits of exceptionally high quality and originality. The fair also sponsors a $2,000 public art purchase to be chosen by fair organizers. Last year the fair donated a large handmade paper construction by Sabra Richards to the new wing of the Ann Arbor Public Library—it will be hung this fall after the library's renovation is finished. This year fair organizers will choose works to be donated to the Washtenaw County Juvenile Complex for its newly renovated lobby, and to the Ronald McDonald House for its planned addition.

The Graceful Arch Stage will feature live music again, after another close call. Recurring demands by the university that the fairs pay the U-M's post-fair cleanup bill again left the stage with an uncertain fate until mid-June. Located on the U-M campus at the northwest corner of South University and East University, the stage will offer hourly performances from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and until 6 p.m. Saturday. Performers include the Chenille Sisters, Frank Allison and the Odd Sox, and the Bird of Paradise Orchestra. For a complete listing, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 67. The Washtenaw Council for the Arts will again coordinate Graceful Arch performances, which are sponsored by the fair and MCI.

Children's Activities: The Street Art Fair's children's activity booth offers youngsters up to ten years old a chance to make collages, hats, and wind socks and to experiment with watercolor and tempera paints and building with wood scraps. Under the supervision of Mary Keren and Linda Meador of the Ann Arbor "Y," along with a group of enthusiastic volunteers, it's open from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 4 p.m. each day. This is a remarkably well-run operation, approved by thousands of kids. The booth should not be considered a babysitting service, though. There is no fee, but donations are welcome.

Child care is available at the Ann Arbor "Y" itself, located at the corner of South Fifth Avenue and William. During the fair, supervised child care for kids ages three to nine costs $12 per session (less for "Y" members). Sessions are offered twice daily Wednesday through Friday, 1:30–4:30 p.m. and 6–8:30 p.m. Preregistration is preferred; call (313) 663–0536.

A Red Cross trailer and a CB radio headquarters are set up at the South U/East U intersection. Volunteers from the Ann Arbor Emergency Radio and CB Group patrol the fair, helping to find lost children and relaying information to fair organizers on everything from crowd problems to weather forecasts. The Red Cross offers emergency first aid, including ice packs for heat stress.

Free long-distance telephone calls can be made from an MCI booth located at Church and South University during the fair. Calls are limited to three minutes.

Demonstrations are offered every day by twenty Street Art Fair artists and Potters Guild members. (Booth numbers in parentheses.)

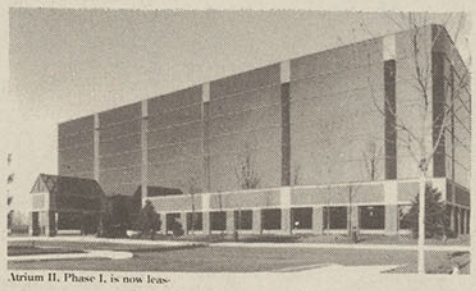
Looking for new offices?

We could make this your last move.

Nobody moves for the fun of it
Nobody moves their office for the fun of it. They move because they're out of space, or unhappy with the cost, the location is wrong, or they want better service from building management. Now, no one is perfect, but at the Thomas B.McMullen Company, we've tried to be very creative (and shrewd) to give you space solutions that could just make this the last move you'll ever need to make.

Move without moving
We've built over a half-million square feet of office space in one of Ann Arbor's premier business districts – across from Briarwood, right along I-94. All this high tech, highly visible, flexible office space means that the next time you need to move — you can stay right here. Which is just what most of our tenants do. They never leave nearby customers, favorite vendors, restaurants, and convenient parking.



Atrium II, Phase I, is now leas

Don't move - be happy
Our zeal to keep you happy drives us to manage almost every aspect of these premium offices with our own staff: construction, leasing and maintenance. By doing it all ourselves, we deliver responsive service, and you get more value. If you ever have a problem: whether a need for space, or just to fix a sticky doorknob, there's one number to call: the Thomas B. McMullen Company. Our tenants say it works. Which is why very few of them ever leave.

STATE · STREET
ART · FAIR

A fresh look with ninety new artists

Place: The State Street Area Art Fair includes sections on Thompson and on North University between State and Thayer; the rest of the fair is on three sides of the block bounded by State, East Liberty, Maynard, and William. (Despite the fair's name, it has only one large booth, housing the Ann Arbor Fiber Arts Guild, on State Street itself. The hundreds of booths farther down State are the campus portion of the Summer Art Fair.

Size: The State Street Area fair remains steady this year, with 220 artists exhibiting in 220 booths. An additional large booth at the corner of State and William houses work by fifteen members of the Ann Arbor Fiber Arts Guild.

Comments: Look for a lot of new faces this year. Ninety artists—40 percent of the total number—are new to the State Street Area fair this year. Fair coordinator Kathy Krick credits the change to a wave of applications from innovative ceramicists and sculptors.

The fair has two new information booths in addition to the main one on State at East Liberty (see below), and there is a new outdoor food booth across the street from Liberty Plaza at the corner of Division and East Liberty. ►

COURSE?

Do you feel as if you're going in every direction but the right one?

The push of work demands, the pull of home responsibilities, the endless weekend plans sometimes seem to lead us nowhere. But they may be the very thing leading you to a Christian Science Reading Room.

It's a place to find your bearings. A place where you can get off the world's zigzag course and listen to the leadings of God. During Art Fair, come on in and browse or study. It's a great place to find your way.

Artist selection: A nine-person jury screens new applicants and reviews the entire fair on the street. This year's jurors are U-M printmaking instructor Michael Thomas; 16 Hands gallery director Jill Damon; calligrapher Susan Skarsgard; U-M administrator Liene Karels; sculptor Richard Tucker; ceramist Bobbi Stevens; U-M jewelry instructors Eugene and Hiroko Pijanowski; and EMU fine arts major Rebecca Gibson.

Exhibitors pay $250 for a 10′ × 10′ street space, or $300 for a sheltered booth of the same size.

Sponsor: The fair is a project of the State Street Area Association, a group of businesspeople who promote the north-of-campus shopping district. Kathy Krick is again art fair director. For information on the 1992 fair, July 22–25, or for artists' addresses, write to the State Street Area Art Fair, Box 4128, Ann Arbor 48106, or call (313) 663–6511.

Prizes and purchase awards: The fair will award $500 cash prizes for "Best of Show" artists in two-dimensional and three-dimensional media. Last year the winners were painter Charles Gatewood and ceramist David Gilbertsen. The fair also awards four honorable mention prizes of $100 each. In addition, several State Street Area Association merchants have committed themselves to purchase awards—the purchase of art for $150 or more from fair artists of their choice.

Information booths are the place to go for art fair publications and general community information. Fair-goers can also buy fair postcards and T-shirts there. The main information booth, in its familiar place on the traffic island at State and East Liberty, is the best place to leave messages and get emergency help. It is staffed by volunteers from the Ann Arbor Art Association. There are also two new information booths this year: at Liberty and Division (staffed by Boy Scout troops 23 and 71), and at William and State (staffed by the Jaycees).

The food booth across the street from Liberty Plaza will be serving grilled hot dogs, chicken, Polish sausage, and canned drinks. Sponsored by the State Street Area Association, the booth will have the same hours as the fair: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

The Michigan Theater will be selling movie posters and other film memorabilia at a booth outside the theater during the fair. Located on East Liberty near Maynard, Ann Arbor's only surviving movie palace presents art and foreign films in the evening (see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 67).

Live broadcasts: WIQB (103 FM) will be broadcasting from a booth in front of the Michigan Theater, Wednesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Community Access Television (cable channels 8, 9, & 10) will provide on-the-air exposure to anyone who visits their booth near the corner of East Liberty and Fifth Avenue. Fair-goers can send a message to Mom or the entire community (see p. 15).

Liberty Plaza, at the corner of East Liberty and Division, features live music and entertainment afternoons during the fair. Performances are coordinated by Herb David of Herb David Guitar Studio. (See Art Fair Entertainment, p. 67, for details.)

The Herb David Guitar Studio (East Liberty at Fifth Avenue) also hosts its popular porch performances again this year from noon to 6 p.m. daily.

Children's Activities: Friday is Children's Day at Herb David Guitar Studio, with performances by children on the porch and a hands-on open house for kids inside. Hours: noon to 5 p.m. The studio is located at the corner of East Liberty and South Fifth Avenue.

Child care is available at the Ann Arbor "Y," located on South Fifth Avenue at William. During the fair, supervised child care for kids ages three to nine costs $12 per session (less for "Y" members). Sessions are offered twice daily Wednesday through Friday, 1:30–4:30 p.m. and 6–8:30 p.m. Preregistration is preferred; call (313) 663–0536.

The Kempf House, 312 South Division near Liberty, will be open to allow fairgoers to glimpse what life was like in Ann Arbor at the turn of the century. Hours are 1–4 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday (to 8 p.m. on Friday). The $1 admission fee covers tours of the historic Greek Revival house and garden as well as cookies and lemonade.

The Earth, a slide show of photos from thirty countries, will be offered twice daily during the fair at the Ann Arbor Artists' Co-op, in the basement of Harris Hall at State and Huron. If photographer George Chan's pristine land- and cityscapes remind you of National Geographic, that's because most of them were taken for its Taiwanese equivalent, The Earth. (Chan wound up in Ann Arbor when his wife enrolled in a U-M Ph.D. program.) Shows are at noon and 3 p.m., and tickets are $1.

Nonprofit organization booths are on East Liberty just west and east of Fifth Avenue. Coordinated by the City of Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Council for the Arts, State Street Area Merchants, and the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, eighty-one nonprofit organizations offer information, discussion, and the opportunity to donate to a favorite charity or cause. Mugs, T-shirts, and other fund-raising items are on sale. A new nonprofit organization will have its own booth farther up East Liberty near Liberty Plaza: the Ann Arbor Police Department will distribute information about a proposed citywide Police Athletic League, building on the youth athletic activities the department has begun to develop at local schools and parks. Officers will staff the booth from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday.

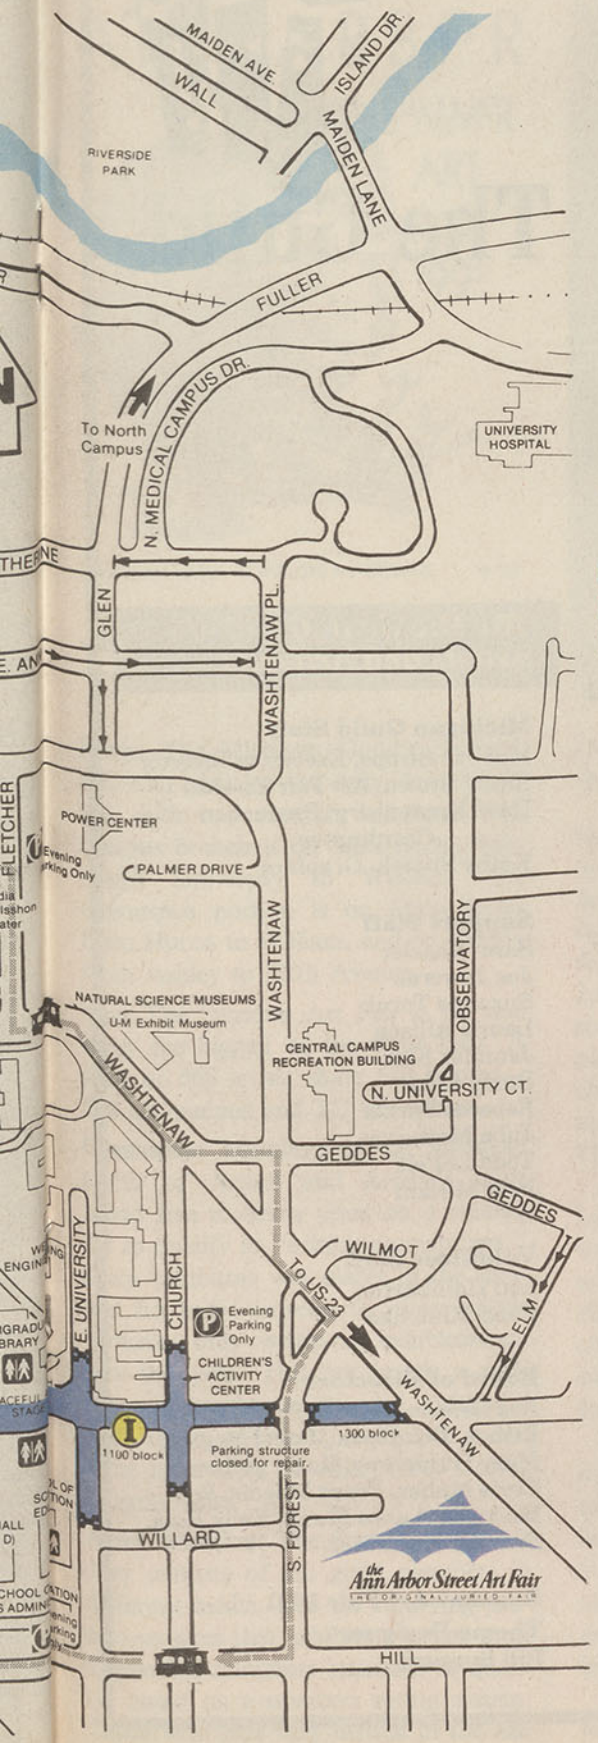
Parking is tighter than ever this year because several city and U-M structures are closed for repairs. Visitors are urged to use the shuttle service from free outlying lots at Pioneer High School and Briarwood mall (see inset at right).

BOR ART FAIR



Public parking structure/lot
$.50/hour for metered on-street parking and surface lots 8 a.m.–6 p.m. Mon.–Sat. Many meters take quarters only. Parking in public structures costs $6 per entry during the fair; the automated Maynard structure takes bills up to $10.

U-M parking structure/lot
Art fair parking is available at structures on Fletcher, Thompson, Church, and Hill streets 4:30 p.m.–midnight Wed.–Fri., and 8 a.m.–midnight Sat.; cost is $6 per entry. Parking is not available on most surface lots between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. Cars parked on permit-only lots during posted hours may be towed.

One-way streets

Street numbering system
Block numbers are counted 100 per block, west and east from Main Street and north and south from Huron. For example, 300 East William is three blocks east of Main; 200 South State is two blocks south of Huron.

Barricade for Art Fair only

Art Fair Trolley
Fare: $.50 (free to riders who show a return ticket on the fair shuttle; see below). Trolleys circle the fair at approximately 10-minute intervals, picking up passengers at specially marked stops. Call 996-0400 for city bus information.

Accessible abundance

Place: The Michigan Guild's Summer Art Fair remains the only Ann Arbor fair with two separate locations. The campus branch is on State Street from South University to William. The downtown portion is on Main Street from Huron to William, and on Liberty from Ashley to Fifth Avenue.

Size: The Summer Art Fair is far and away the biggest of the three fairs. A total of 560 artists share 540 booths—328 on campus and 212 downtown.

Comments: Members of the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans must spend five to seven years on a waiting list to qualify as "exhibiting members." Since exhibitors win places in the summer fair based on seniority, there is little turnover; only twenty-one exhibitors are new this year. This fair boasts a wide range of handmade arts and crafts at a wide range of prices; overall, it is the most affordable of Ann Arbor's three summer fairs.

Artist Selection: The Standards Review Jury consists of ten guild members in different media, and the rejurying process requires that exhibiting artists meet a specified minimum standard of quality, based on a numbers rating system. Those who pass may exhibit in the fair for three years before being subject once again to review.

Sponsor: The Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans remains Ann Arbor's only democratic, artist-run fair sponsor. A full-time staff, headed by executive director Mary Strope, serves the guild's 2,000 members by operating three seasonal art fairs and arranging insurance plans, business seminars, arts education classes, and gallery referrals. Members also have access to the guild's gallery at 118 North Fourth Avenue.

The guild's governing board is elected by its 625 "exhibiting members"—those whose seniority entitles them to exhibit at the Summer Art Fair. This year, Ann Arbor businessman Franz Mogdis again chairs the board, which consists of twelve artists and three representatives from the business community.

In addition to the summer event, fair director Shary Brown and production coordinator Dave Kronenberg are kept busy planning the guild's Holiday Art Fair (to be held at the Orchard Ridge campus of Oakland Community College on December 7 and 8) and a spring fair in Detroit's Greektown.

For information about exhibitors, the holiday and Greektown fairs, and the 1992 Summer Art Fair, which will be held July 22–25, write to the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, 118 North Fourth Avenue, Ann Arbor 48104, or call (313) 662-ARTS.

Information booths: Guild booths on State Street across from the LS&A Building and on Main Street at Liberty offer friendly assistance of all kinds, as well as several free art fair publications. T-shirts, posters, canvas bags, and rain ponchos with this year's baboon logo—designed by local graphic artist Bill Burgard—are on sale at additional booths, one at the corner of Main and William, one on Liberty at South Fourth Avenue, and one at each end of the State Street segment of the fair.

Food fair: Several local restaurants, as well as the Main Street Area Association, will sell food and refreshments at a food court on West Liberty between Main and Ashley.

The Michigan Union Food Court: Twenty-three outdoor vendors will sell ethnic food and American favorites between the Michigan Union and the LS&A Building starting at 10:30 a.m. each day of the fair. See Food at the Fair, p. 86, for a full listing.

broadcast live from in front of the LS&A Building on State Street during fair hours. There will be a special live broadcast of WUOM's "Desert Island Disks" at 8 a.m. Saturday featuring puppeteer Brad Williams and his friend Zabar, an extraterrestrial visitor from the planet Pluta. The station also is sponsoring its popular "Kids on Radio" workshop again this year as well as a "Today's World" show where children will discuss various issues (see Children's Activities below for details). Fair-goers can also tour the studio on the fifth floor of the LS&A Building (reservations should be made at the outdoor booth in front of the building), where they can buy books, posters, cassettes, and T-shirts from past fund drives at the Michigan Radio Garage Sale.

WJR (760 AM) will broadcast live from the corner of Liberty and Main Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. to noon and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

WCM (99 AM), an Ypsilanti-based Christian-format station, will broadcast live from inside Dom Bakeries at the corner of Main and West Liberty from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Community Access Television: CATV (cable channels 8, 9, & 10) will provide on-the-air exposure to anyone who visits their booth near the corner of East Liberty and Fifth Avenue. Fair-goers can send a message to Mom or the entire community (see p. 15).

Children's Activities: Last year's popular family arts activity area relocated this year to the corner of Ashley and West Liberty. It's also been renamed. In exchange for a $2,000 contribution from a national candy-maker, it's now officially the Skittles Imagination Station. From 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, children of all ages can try their hands at supervised art projects such as making sun visors, necklaces, and cards. Aspiring artists can also join in special daily projects to make puppets, mobiles, origami, and fingerprint pictures.

Storyteller Dan Jacobs will provide entertainment on Wednesday; Crosscurrents, a group of painters and poets, on Thursday; Amazin' Blue, a U-M a cappella group, on Friday; and the U-M Juggling Club on Saturday.

Art activities will be led by volunteers from the Pioneer Art Club; RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program); Health Plus of Michigan; the Art Academy of Manchester; and the Childcare Coordinating and Referral Service. In addition to Skittles, the area is sponsored this year by Genesis Creative Oases, which donated art supplies; various local businesses also contributed.

The activity area should not be used as a babysitting service. Child care is available at the Ann Arbor "Y," located on South Fifth Avenue at William. During the fair, supervised child care for kids ages three to nine costs $12 per quiet halls. The museum's restrooms are ample and clean, and its galleries are air-conditioned. Among the July exhibits are paintings and drawings from the "Wide World of Whistler," and "Hidden Treasures," a collection of rarely seen paintings from the museum's storeroom. The museum shop sells a variety of elegant cards, posters, postcards, gifts, and toys. Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Admission is free.

The Main Street Area Association will be selling food, refreshments, and T-shirts at their booth at the intersection of Liberty and Main.

The Ann Arbor Center for Independent Living will provide a shaded rest area for disabled persons, as well as art fair information and lemonade, at its location on West Liberty between Main and Ashley.

Free long-distance telephone calls within the U.S. can be made from an AT&T booth located at Main and Liberty during the fair. Calls are limited to three minutes.

Nonprofit organization booths are on East Liberty just west and east of Fifth Avenue. Coordinated by the City of Ann Arbor, Washtenaw Council for the Arts, State Street Area Merchants, and the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, eighty-one nonprofit organizations will offer information, discussion, and the opportunity to donate to a favorite charity or cause. Mugs, T-shirts, and other fund-raising items will be on sale. A new nonprofit organization will have its own booth farther up East Liberty near Liberty Plaza: the Ann Arbor Police Department will distribute information about a proposed citywide Police Athletic League, building on the youth athletic activities the department has begun to develop at local schools and parks. Officers will staff the booth from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday.

Six guild artists offer demonstrations throughout each day of the fair. Their booth numbers are shown in parentheses. James R. Black, Jr., ceramics (campus, 166); Margaret Mayan Glinke, painting (campus, 89); Leonard Hallen,

Wanted: Ann Arbor Artwork

The Ann Arbor Observer is looking for a few good covers. If you have artwork that shows any aspect of the city in a new, interesting way, we'd love to see a color print or slide. (Because we often schedule our cover months ahead, we'd prefer one that we can keep for future reference.) Winter scenes are especially needed.

For more information, call or write for our cover guidelines:

Ypsilanti Heritage Festival 1991

August 16, 17, & 18

Free Music

There's always plenty of free musical entertainment during the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival. No matter what your taste, we're sure to please. How about a little blues and jazz at the Depot Town Jazz Competition? Maybe you lean more toward the sounds of our Country Music Jamboree. There's even a special program of children's entertainment for the little ones in your group. And best of all... it's absolutely free!

General Festival Hours

Noon - 1:00 am, Fri., Aug. 16th
9:00 am - 1:00 am, Sat., Aug. 17th
10:00 am - 6:00 pm, Sun., Aug. 18th

Exhibitor's Hours

Noon - 8:00 pm, Fri., Aug. 16th
9:00 am - 8:00 pm, Sat., Aug. 17th
10:00 am - 6:00 pm, Sun., Aug. 18th

Living History

History comes alive as early settlers return to Ypsilanti. The Living History encampment provides a glimse of life during the 18th and 19th century. Trappers, voyageurs and military units recreate an early American frontier experience that's both fascinating and educational.

Vietnam Veterans Memorial Moving Wall
August 14-20, 1991, Frog Island Park

Ypsilanti Heritage Parade
10:00 am, Saturday, August 17th

Home Tour

If your interest is history or architecture, there's our Historic Home Tour. Outstanding examples depicting a variety of 19th Century architectural styles can be found in Ypsilanti's historic district. Sponsored by the Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation, the Sunday afternoon tour of homes showcases our rich architectural legacy.

ART FAIR ENTERTAINMENT

WEDNESDAY DAYTIME

NOTE: All events are free unless otherwise noted.

Mr. B. An art fair favorite since 1980, and now an internationally acclaimed performer, Mark "Mr. B" Braun wheels his piano into the intersection of East University and South University about a half-dozen times a day for impromptu concerts featuring his fabulous boogie-woogie piano playing. This year, you'll need to catch him today or tomorrow, as out-of-town commitments will force him to miss his usual art fair weekend performances. (Mr. B promises to play at the corner of Main and Huron every day for a year as penance.) Occasionally between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m., East University at South University.

"Prince Featherhead." The Goodtime Players, Community Education and Recreation's professional theater company, presents this children's play about a vain, handsome prince and an equally vain, beautiful princess whose fairy godmothers decide to teach them both a lesson about looking beyond appearances. 11 a.m.–11:45 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

Sheila Ritter. This popular local children's entertainer sings both traditional and original children's songs while accompanying herself on guitar or autoharp and encouraging her audience to sing, clap, and dance along with the music. Noon–12:45 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

Fair-goers have a chance to hear Ann Arbor's own Chenille Sisters in the open air—and for nothing—at the Graceful Arch Stage, Thursday at 6:15 p.m.

Bring a bag lunch. Noon, U-M Art and Architecture Auditorium (room 2104), 2000 Bonisteel Blvd., North Campus. 763–4417.

Herb David Guitar Studio. Acoustic guitar music performed by Herb David teachers, students, and others. Special guest performers this week will likely include local singer-songwriter David Menefee and the Deadbeat Society, a mandolin, bass, and string band. Noon–6 p.m., Herb David Guitar Studio porch, E. Liberty at S. Fifth Ave.

Art Fair Recital Series: First Presbyterian Church. A 20-minute concert performed by U-M organ grad student Darlene Kuperus Mast. Program: Bach's Prelude in G Major and "Nun Komm, der Heiden Heiland," and Jehan Alain's "Postlude Pour L'Office de Complies" and "Litanies." 12:15–12:35 p.m., First Presbyterian Church, 1432 Washtenaw.

Open House: Kempf House Center for Local History. Guided tours of this restored Greek Revival house, named for the family of German immigrant musicians who occupied it at the turn of the century. During the art fairs, free lemonade to all visitors. Members of the U-M Faculty Women's Quilting Group demonstrate quilting techniques. 1–4 p.m., Kempf House, 312 S. Division. Admission $1 (seniors & children ages 12–18, $.50; children under 12, free). 994–4898.

Dirty Street Detour. This local band performs a mixture of blues, jazz, R&B, and funk. Members are tenor saxophonist Rob Ferrett, keyboardist Andrew Karp, electric bass player Rahul Sharma, and percussionist Kurt Maier. 1:15–2 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

"Whaddya Lookin' At?!!" Local dancer-choreographers Charmie Gholson and Carmen Moyer present a series of bawdy, humorous, "slightly psychotic" modern dance pieces. 2:30–3:15 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

Bird of Paradise Orchestra. Original jazz arrangements performed by this nine-piece orchestra regularly heard at Ann Arbor's Bird of Paradise jazz club. 3:45–4:30 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

OCCASIONALLY THE #1 SELLING LIGHT BEER GETS A BIG HEAD.

Every time you pour yourself a Miller Lite, you're getting the greatest beer in the history of the world. After all, Lite's not some watered-down version of a regular beer. That's why it tastes great. And while we're not one to brag, great taste is the reason we're America's most popular light beer.

MILLER LITE. WHERE LESS FILLING REALLY TASTES GREAT.

Looking at Art--Seeing and Discovering More

Free and open to all fairgoers. Bring your lunch; complimentary cold beverages will be available.

Sponsored by the Education Alumni Society and the School of Education

II-V-I Orchestra. Big band jazz performed by this local ensemble. 4:30–5:30 p.m., Liberty Plaza, E. Liberty at S. Division.

Vinyl Back. This Ohio-based "hard jazz" group has an imaginative, diverse style that has earned them airplay on Pittsburgh and New York radio stations. 5–5:45 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

WEDNESDAY EVENING

NOTE: All events are free unless otherwise noted.

Mr. B. See 11 a.m. listing above. Impromptu boogie-woogie piano concerts by Mark "Mr. B" Braun, an art fair regular. Occasionally until 8 p.m., East University at South University.

Big Dave and the Ultrasonics. Blues and blues-rock by this local band led by vocalist and guitarist Dave Steele. The group has opened for the likes of Koko Taylor and Mitch Ryder. 6:15–7:15 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

"Truly, Madly, Deeply": Michigan Theater Foundation. British director Anthony Minghella's 1991 seriocomedy about the grieving process. A dead man and his ghostly buddies return for a brief stay at his girlfriend's house. 7:25 p.m., Michigan Theater, 603 E. Liberty. $5 (seniors, students, & children, $4; MTF members, $3). 668–8397.

Frank Allison and the Odd Sox. This widely acclaimed local rock 'n' roll band plays songs that are snot-nosed and smart-mouthed, tenderhearted true stories set to irresistibly catchy guitar-fueled melodies and a barbaric beat. One of Ann Arbor's musical treasures, the band recently returned from a tour of the Soviet Union. 7:45–9 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

"Musical Art in the Park": Ann Arbor Civic Band. Charlotte Owen directs this volunteer ensemble in a program of music inspired by works of visual art, including Norman Dello Joio's "Scenes from the Louvre." Also, the English Country Dancers dance to Gustav Holst's "Second Suite for Military Band." A relaxing summer outing on the beautiful slopes of West Park. Bring a picnic and a blanket or chairs to sit on. 8 p.m., West Park band shell, W. Huron at Chapin. 994–2300, ext. 228.

Pentangle: The Ark. Founded in 1967, this English quintet rejuvenated British folk-rock by using a jazz-oriented rhythm section to anchor John Renbourn and Bert Jansch's virtuoso guitar work and Jacqui McShee's beautiful, haunting vocals. Renbourn is no longer with the group—he was replaced by Grappelli-style violinist Mike Pigott—but Jansch and McShee remain as the band's core attractions. Their repertoire includes traditional ballads and airs, classic blues, and Jansch's original songs. 8 p.m., The Ark, 637½ S. Main. Tickets $13.75 in advance at Schoolkids', Herb David Guitar Studio, and the Michigan Union Ticket Office; and at the door. To charge by phone, call 763-TKTS.

"Best of the Midwest": MainStreet Comedy Showcase. A variety of top-notch regional and area comics. Tonight's headliner is to be announced. Alcohol is served. 8:30 p.m., old VFW

Cousins Heritage Inn

Because Sometimes the Best Way to Enjoy the Art Fair Is to Get Away From It

The booths, the crowds, the heat . . . sure, it's fun. But when you're hungry and ready to relax, the last thing you want is to wait 45 minutes for a seat.

Reserve your table for a leisurely dinner at Cousins. Just ten minutes away from the crowds, you can enjoy appetizers like Venison Pate and House Smoked Salmon. Entrees like Brace of Quail with Dried Cherry Sauce and Roasted Veal Chops with Shiitake Mushrooms. And desserts like our housemade ice creams, fresh fruit tarts, and Triple Chocolate Decadence. A delightfully different menu every other week.

Zingerman's DELICATESSEN

great INGREDIENTS make a GREAT SANDWICH!

To make a great sandwich you have to start with great ingredients. And at Zingerman's our sandwiches showcase the best food we can find. That means a commitment to the highest standards of quality and to a continual search for improvement. Corned beef is cooked in our own kitchen and sliced hot throughout the day. Chicken is raised by Amish farmers in Indiana. Swiss cheese is from Switzerland. Bacon is dry-cured and applewood smoked. Rye bread is double-baked and sliced fresh all day long to keep it warm and crusty.

There's no tricking the tastebuds! You can taste good food in every bite.

We'd put the ingredients in our sandwiches up—item by item—against those used in the finest white tablecloth restaurants in the country. In fact, in most cases we think ours are better. Much more importantly, when we put them all together, they make Zingerman's sandwiches taste so good!

THE CHOICE IS CLEAR

The Midwest's Largest Continuous Coverage Area—15,700 Square Miles of Crisp, Clear Reception

Local poet, radio DJ, and jazz propagandist Arwulf Arwulf has made a side career of ridiculing the art fairs' commercial side. You can hear him read his poetry at Kaleidoscope Books & Collectibles, Thursday at 7 p.m. band led by vocalist and guitarist Dave Steele. 6–9 p.m., The Blind Pig, 208 S. First. 996–8555.

Chenille Sisters. Ann Arbor's beloved female vocal trio has been gaining a national following in recent years for their lush harmonies, catchy lyrics, and off-the-wall humor, with songs about everything from love to chocolate. A rare chance to hear them at no charge in the open air. 6:15–7:15 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

Arwulf Arwulf: The Kaleidoscope Series. This locally famous poet, actor, jazz propagandist, and radio DJ has made a hobby of denouncing the annual art fairs for their crass commercialism. (He's widely credited as the originator of the quip "It isn't art, and it isn't fair.") He's always an entertaining personality, whether declaiming his own politically oriented poetry, performing excerpts from the theater, or displaying his encyclopedic knowledge of jazz history. Tonight's program is to be announced. Coffee and tea served. 7 p.m., Kaleidoscope Books & Collectibles, 217 S. State. 995–9887.

"Truly, Madly, Deeply": Michigan Theater Foundation. British director Anthony Minghella's 1991 seriocomedy about the grieving process. A dead man and his ghostly buddies return for a brief stay at his girlfriend's house. 7:25 p.m., Michigan Theater, 603 E. Liberty. $5 (seniors, students, & children, $4; MTF members, $3). 668–8397.

Anne Be Davis. This very popular local band plays passionate, melodic guitar-based rock 'n' roll that blends the Replacements' gutsy rawness, R.E.M.'s airy refinement, and the BoDeans' country-soul. 7:45–9 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

"Wayang Kulit: Javanese Shadow Play": Festival of Indonesia/U-M Center for South and Southeast Asian Studies. A rare chance to see a Javanese shadow-puppet play performed by a world-renowned master of the art, Ki Anom Suroto. Wayang kulit is a highly sophisticated art form that has been refined over the centuries. The puppeteer manipulates intricately carved flat leather puppets representing the gods, demons, and heroes of Hindu mythology against a large backlit screen, to the tinkling accompaniment of an Indonesian gamelan orchestra (chimes, gongs, and drums). The flickering shadows lend an otherworldly, almost hypnotic quality to the performance. The classical shadow play is revered in Indonesia not only as an art form but as a means of educating the young about their cultural heritage. In Java, performances run from dusk to dawn over a period of several nights. Tonight's abbreviated performance is approximately 2–3 hours long. This is one of only five U.S. appearances Ki Anom Suroto and his orchestra are making on a national tour this summer. 8 p.m., Rackham Auditorium. 764–0352.

"Leaves of Grass": Serpent's Tooth Theater Company. Formerly based at Oakland Community College, this area professional theater company presents U-M English composition lecturer Kenn Pierson's adaptation of the original 1855 edition of Walt Whitman's revolutionary book of poems. The one-man show turns Whitman's provokingly intimate public poetry into a dramatic encounter between poet and audience, and it includes several original songs set to Whitman's lyrics. Directed by STT artistic director Michael Geiger, it stars Thomas Friscella, recently returned from a national touring production of "The Sound of Music." 8 p.m., Performance Network, 408 W. Washington. Tickets $9 (students & seniors, $7) by reservation and at the door. 663–0681.

"Crimes of the Heart": Ann Arbor Civic Theater. Audrey LaVelle directs Beth Henley's Pulitzer Prize-winning, bittersweet comedy about three Southern sisters trying to escape their past and the shadow of their mother's long-ago suicide. As the play opens, the three sisters are reunited at the family home in anticipation of their grandfather's imminent death. The eldest sister is unmarried at 30 and fears spinsterhood; the middle child has returned from a failed attempt to launch a singing career on the West Coast; and the youngest has just been released from jail after shooting her abusive husband. Even in its blackest moments, the play retains a sense of humor and wonder, and the hope of a better tomorrow. Stars Margie Warrick, Anne-Marie Roberts, and Anne Kolaczowski Magee. 8 p.m., Ann Arbor Civic Theater, 1035 S. Main. Tickets $6 (Thursdays, 2 for the price of 1) available in advance at the theater box office and at the door. 662–7282.

Renowned Javanese shadow puppeteer Ki Anom Suroto gives a rare performance Thursday at 8 p.m. in Rackham Auditorium.

"Best of the Midwest": MainStreet Comedy Showcase. A variety of top-notch regional and area comics. Tonight's headliner is to be announced. Alcohol is served. 8:30 p.m., old VFW Hall (below Seva restaurant), 314 E. Liberty. $7 reserved seating; $6 general admission. 996–9080.

"Superstar: The Life & Times of Andy Warhol": Michigan Theater Foundation. Chuck Workman's 1990 documentary about the famous pop artist. 9:30 p.m., Michigan Theater, 603 E. Liberty. $5 (seniors, students, & children, $4; MTF members, $3). 668–8397.

FRIDAY DAYTIME

NOTE: All events are free unless otherwise noted.

Fran Norton. This local folksinger and storyteller sings traditional and contemporary songs in a clear soprano that has provoked comparisons to Joan Baez and Ireland's Mary Black. 11–11:30 a.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

Odd Girl Out. This Ohio-based band plays folk and rock with a new age edge. Noon–12:45 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

Herb David Guitar Studio. See noon Wednesday listing. Acoustic guitar music performed by Herb David teachers, students, and others. Noon–6 p.m., Herb David Guitar Studio porch, E. Liberty at S. Fifth Ave.

Art Fair Recital Series: First Presbyterian Church. A 20-minute concert performed by local organist Thomas Strode, founder and director of the acclaimed Ann Arbor Boychoir. Program to be announced. 12:15–12:35 p.m., First Presbyterian Church, 1432 Washtenaw.

Open House: Kempf House Center for Local History. See 1 p.m. Wednesday listing. Guided tours of this restored Greek Revival home, named for the family of German immigrant musicians who occupied it at the turn of the century. Free lemonade and quilting demonstrations. 1–8 p.m., Kempf House, 312 S. Division. Admission $1 (seniors & children ages 12–18, $.50; children under 12, free). 994–4898.

Dan's Big Ego. Modern dance-rock originals performed by this band led by multi-instrumentalist and vocalist Dan Orcutt, who builds most of his instruments himself. With bassist Don Rimmer and percussionist John O'Reilly. 1:15–2 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

Summer Theater School Performance: Young People's Theater. Youths ages 9 through 17 present an original program of improvisation, mime, dance, and drama, the culmination of two weeks of summer school study. 2 p.m., Arena Theater (basement of Frieze Bldg.), 105 S. State St. 996–3888.

Paul Vornhagen and Friends. Jazz by this group headed by accomplished tenor saxophonist Paul Vornhagen, regularly heard at the Bird of Paradise club. 2:30–3:15 p.m., Graceful Arch Stage, South University at East University.

Chris Casello and His Prodigals. Surf music and rock 'n' roll performed by this local band. 3-4 p.m., Liberty Plaza, E. Liberty at S. Division.

Emo Phillips: MainStreet Comedy Showcase. First local appearance in two years by this audaciously eccentric, freakishly cerebral comic whom many fans and critics regard as one of the funniest persons on earth. Phillips has created an onstage persona of unusual complexity and resonance, at once an innocent idiot of mythical proportions and a sly trickster incessantly fracturing conventional reality with lightning-quick verbal wizardry. Critics, baffled as well as charmed, have called him a "befuddled visitor from another planet" and "Kafka's sly, irreverent hunger artist made emaciated flesh." Preceded by two opening acts. Alcohol is served. 8:30 & 11 p.m., old VFW Hall (below Seva restaurant), 314 E. Liberty. $15 for reserved seating, $13 general admission. 996–9080.

Beat-The-Heat
SUMMER SPA SALE

SLIP INTO A HOT SPRING SPA...AND BEAT THE HEAT

You may wonder why anyone would purchase a hot tub during the sweltering summer. Well, just ask one of the experts pictured above. After a lot of debating on whether to get a pool or a spa, they decided a Hot Spring Spa would give them the most use. As the fellow in the middle explains, "We figured we could turn down the heat and use the spa like a pool to cool off, only it even has moving jets and other neat stuff." And from the gentleman on the right, "Yeah, and we can still use it outdoors in the winter cause Hot Springs costs less to use than other spas, even when the snow is really blasting." "And Mom and Dad like using it when it's cooler at night," this from the left, "cause it helps them unwind after work." Okay, but why Hot Springs? "Well, they have the best warranty, five years even on the pumps and other stuff, and Dad said that was real important," from the right. "And don't forget," from the middle again, "it was real easy to set up." "Yeah," from the left, "all we did was fill it with the garden hose and plug it in.And from all three, "Make sure you get one during their sale, cause you save lots of money. Buying things on sale makes mom and dad real happy!"

So there are your reasons. From some real experts. Summer or Winter... Hot Springs Spas.

The King and I

Written by Oscar Hammerstein
Music and lyrics by Richard Rodgers

The King And I is the tender story of an English widow who becomes a tutor to the children of the King of Siam. The most interested pupil turns out to be the King himself. The King And I features familiar songs "I Whistle A Happy Tune," "Hello Young Lovers," "Getting To Know You," "Shall We Dance?" and "Something Wonderful."

REAL ESTATE MATTERS

Finding Unique Homes For Unique Buyers

Buyers often hope to find a "unique" home, such as "a house with character" or "one with lots of nooks and crannies and built-in bookshelves" or "an architect-designed home in Ann Arbor Hills."

Unfortunately, many buyers have problems finding "the right one" because an agent focuses on conventional homes or uses his own criteria instead of theirs when reviewing available houses. Buyers are ill-served by an agent not attuned to their special wants or needs.

Both buyers and sellers are shortchanged when houses are evaluated or priced as bad examples of a conventional home, instead of being valued for their uniqueness. There's a niche in the housing market that is often overlooked.

Make sure your agent appreciates the special features of the home you want to buy or sell. Give me a call; perhaps I can be of help to you.

From Zingerman's Deli to the Bagel Factory

116 places to eat

Humankind does not live by art alone. The diverse foods available at and near the art fair would stimulate any artist's palate—or any fair-goer's. A little planning may save you from eating an egg roll standing up when you really wanted a corned beef on rye sitting down, or vice-versa. Our map shows eating places within four blocks of the fair, organized by location. The list begins at Kerrytown and ends at South University and Washtenaw.

Prices for a meal for one excluding beverage, tax, and tip:

$ (under $6) $$ ($6–$12)
$$$ ($12–$20) $$$$ (over $20)
